

Psychoanalytic Psychotherapist

Noreen Giffney

BA Hons, PhD, MSc, Clin Dip, MIFPP, MICP

Qualifications

I am a Psychoanalytic Psychotherapist who has completed an accredited clinical training programme in Psychoanalytic Psychotherapy at Trinity College Dublin. I am a member of the Irish Forum for Psychoanalytic Psychotherapy (IFPP) and the Irish Council for Psychotherapy (ICP) and abide by their code of ethics.

- Master of Science (MSc) in Psychoanalytic Psychotherapy in the Department of Psychiatry, Trinity College Dublin (TCD) and in the Irish Institute of Psychoanalytic Psychotherapy (IIPP)
- Diploma (Clin Dip) in Clinical Psychoanalytic Psychotherapy in the Irish Institute of Psychoanalytic Psychotherapy (IIPP)
- Further Basic Training in Mentalization-Based Treatment (MBT) in the Anna Freud Centre, London in collaboration with University College London (UCL)
- Fully-accredited clinical member of IFPP and ICP

Before training as a Psychoanalytic Psychotherapist, I completed Bachelor of Arts (BA Hons) and Doctor of Philosophy (PhD) degrees, both in the area of the humanities at University College Dublin (UCD).

I have extensive experience teaching Psychoanalytic Psychotherapists in training, and convening continuing professional development courses and events for fully-qualified Psychotherapists, Counsellors, Psychologists and Psychiatrists. I was a member of the Clinical Training Committee in the Irish Institute of Psychoanalytic Psychotherapy, and the Education Sub-committee and the Trauma Working Group in the Irish Forum for Psychoanalytic Psychotherapy, and a co-founder of the Object Relations Clinical Reading Group. I am research active and have published extensively in clinical and academic contexts.

I am also Lecturer in Counselling in the School of Communication and Media at the University of Ulster. I had a private practice in Dublin before relocating to County Donegal.

What Is Psychoanalytic Psychotherapy?

Psychoanalytic Psychotherapy takes place in a professional and confidential relationship between two people: client and Psychoanalytic Psychotherapist. Psychoanalytic Psychotherapists work with people experiencing a range of difficulties in their lives.

- Maybe you are experiencing difficulties in a relationship or relationships in your life.
- Perhaps an event has made life very stressful for you.
- You might be struggling to cope with your feelings, thoughts or behaviours.
- You may have become aware that you are repeating patterns in your life, which are impacting negatively on you and your relationships, yet you feel you are unable to change them.
- It may be that you want to take time to explore yourself and how you interact with the world around you.

Psychoanalytic Psychotherapy offers to treat both the distress that first brings a person to psychotherapy, as well as the underlying sources of that distress, which are oftentimes unknown to the person. Psychoanalytic Psychotherapy offers people time and space to gain a deeper understanding of their feelings, thoughts and behaviours, while they work towards finding alternative and more effective ways of dealing with difficulties they may have been experiencing for a long time.
